

AIMA as architectural images. This is what we do and what we have become after several years of working in the architectural field as architects and CG artists. Make it clear, make it simple, make it neat. As a photographer does while shooting, we must discover what we want to depict, which kind of relation with the space represented we are trying to outline. If we can do so, if we can move those subtle chords, we are doing art. We are creating emotion.
